How to find resources on Glossarissimo!

Where to Search

To search our resources, always use the Glossarissimo! blog (glossarissimo.wordpress.com), where you will find a complete listing of all published resources. Avoid attempting to search our fanpage or Facebook group, where the publication of resources is managed automatically and does not always function properly.

Evaluating Online Resources

All sorts of information can be found on the Internet, including misinformation, false information, and sheer fabrication. No central authority reviews and verifies the content of web pages on the Internet. You as an individual are wholly responsible for evaluating the quality and validity of the information presented on the Glossarissimo! blog.

Data Structure

The syntax of each post has been structured in such a way as to make searching as easy as possible: the subject usually appears in the title and/or in the description, all tags appear between parentheses so they are easy to distinguish from the rest of the description, and the title and/or description are often in multiple languages. Each resource is headed by one or more tags, depending upon resource type and language(s). We tag languages using the two-letter ISO 639-1 code. Resources in more than five languages are identified with the (MULTI) tag; those that can be downloaded are marked with the (PDF), (DOC), or (XLS) tags; and tools are tagged (TOOL), (CAT), (BLOG) and (VIDEO). A very small percentage of the resources listed are fee-based; these are identified with the (€) tag.

For best results, always place tags between parentheses. Here some search examples:

- (DE) architecture and/or (EN) architektur (the title and description of bilingual/multilingual resources may be written in any language)
- (EN) agricult (to include both agriculture and agricultural)
- (AR) elect (to include election and electoral, but also electric, electronic, electricity, etc.)
- (EN) (FR) (XLS) (to list all downloadable Excel resources in English and French)
- (IT) - (to list all monolingual resources in Italian)

The descriptions that exist for almost all resources make them easier to track down, and you may also choose to search for synonyms and/or related terms as well as for other possible variations of a search word (for example, singular/plural, or masculine and feminine forms).

See on Scoop.it – Glossarissimo! "The United Nations Development Program (UNDP) in Tunisia published an Arabic-French lexicon of electoral terms on July 10th. The project, which falls within the framework of the UNDP's Electoral Support Program, involved several local and international jurists and experts in electoral and constitutional law. According to the UNDP Tunisia website, the first-ever Arabic-French [...]

Backups of Downloadable Resources

If you cannot locate one of the downloadable resources (PDF, DOC, XLS, or other formats) listed on the Glossarissimo! blog (because the resource is no longer available at its original site, for example), visit our archives, where we usually store a backup copy of the document that we downloaded when we first linked to the resource. You can find an updated list of our archives (with URLs) on the About page of the blog.
